The Highest Tenders Accepted in the Soo Canal Job—Inevitable "Extras."

Startling Admissions Extracted From the Government Engineer.

Ottawa, June 7.—An "In Memoriam" wreath was placed on the desk of the late Sir John A. Macdonald in the House yesterday, it being the fourth anniversary of Sir John's death. A large vase filled with roses adorned the table in the centre of the House. In the absence of Foster the duty of leading the House seemed to devolve upon Sir Hibbert Tupper.

The government bill amending the penitentiary act and arranging for the care of criminals and lunatics in the provincial asylums, which are controlled by provincial authorities, was read a second time.

In committee of supply on the supplementary militia items the minister of militia announced that it was his intention to reduce the permanent corps by 200 and the strength from 1000 to 800.

At the agricultural committee meeting Mr. Corbould protested against the manner in which British Columbia was neglected by the experimental farm staff. He was informed that Entomologist Fletcher would leave for the coast in two weeks and deliver a series of addresses.

Mrs. Hasiam, wife of Andrew Haslam, M. P., left yesterday.

High Commissioner Sir Charles Tupper suggests that domestic servants be aided to come out to Canada.

The opposition have raised strong objections to Chief Justice Davie's salary as Judge in Admiralty.

In the Senate on Wednesday Senator Macdonald of Victoria, in referring to the bill now before the British House of Commons regarding the Behring sea seal fisheries, said that while he admired British institutions the interests of Canada would not be protected in cases in which the United States and Great Britain were concerned unless the Dominion looked will after itself. The regulations of the Paris tribunal were such as to destroy seal life altogether.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell said he had no information to give concerning Sir Edward Gray's bill in the British House. The Canadian government had cabled the high commissioner to ask the British government not to proceed with the bill until the Canadian authorities had examined it. The regulations of the Paris tribunal are not satisfactory to Canada, since they gave rights to Americans not accorded to Canadians. The Imperial government admitted the force of some objections taken by Canada.

Government Engineer Collingwood Schreiber was further examined to-day before the public accounts committee regarding the Soo canal. He said that Ryan & Co. got the contract for the lower entrance to the dock for $299,313 and Allan and Fleming for the upper entrance at $325,926. The lowest tender for the upper entrance was from John Nicholson at $231,049. The latter figures were thought too low by the department. The lowest tender for the lock was from Goodwin & Co., $1,163,693. The next lowest tender was from Conmee & Co., $1,225,590, while the figures of Ryan were $1,282,567. Ryan got the contract because the other two tenders were too low. The first change in the lock added an additional cost of $498,000 and there was another additional item for building pier, etc., of $107,000. Schreiber will be further examined at the next meeting.

Mulock, Liberal, introduced a bill in the House to-day to secure the independence of parliament act. He said that the object of the bill was to keep placemen out of the House. Men should not hold seats with a promise of office in their pockets.

AS TOLD BY THE SURVIVORS

The Passengers Were Forcibly Restrained From Securing Life-Preservers.

Cutting Away the Deck-Load Might Have Saved the Ship—Queer Orders.

San Francisco, June 7.—The Call in its account of the wreck of the Colima as told by the survivors of the wrecked vessel says: The ship was overloaded, badly loaded, and top-heavy loaded. All agree to it. When the gale struck her she weathered it badly. Then she careened. There was a lurch to starboard and she did not right again. The men called out to the captain to cut away the deck load of heavy spars, but the captain was obdurate. He knew his business, or rather fancied he did, and would brook no suggestions from what he called the terrified and panic-stricken passengers, and they probably were all he called them, for they could see death staring them in the face, while the captain remained blind. The ship listed more and more. With apprehension everybody waited and held their breath till she should bear up and right again. But she did not right. She listed still more and then she lost her steering powers. The captain rang for more steam, and would not cut loose the deck load that might have saved her. Steam could not help her. The engines were taxed to their utmost, and still the vessel listed. The panic on board grew worse, the fear of death more intense. Then the captain gave orders for the crew to keep the passengers within bounds. Whether this order went as far as to withhold life preservers from passengers and permit those who sought to do so to come on deck, where they might have a chance of battling with the waves, is not known at present. Perhaps some further investigation will shortly come to light on this point. At all events the effect of those orders was to turn the crew into subaltern tyrants, who acted as though they sought to prevent anyone from escaping the doom that remained before them. Steerage and cabin passengers say they sought to obtain life preservers and were forcibly restrained from doing so. Down in the steerage, a guard was posted at the companion-way door and those who escaped to the deck in time to cast themselves into the sea before the vessel went down did so only by main force, by kicking and fighting the guard. Those who were saved are some of those who were wiser than the captain; who could see their peril clearly and had wit enough to throw themselves into the foaming sea before the Colima gave her last list to starboard. As she did this the captain's whistle sounded to cut loose the deck load of spars.

THE CUBAN TROUBLES.

The Revolutionary Party in the States Plotting Mischief.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 7.—A special to the Florida Citizen from Ferdinando says: A master stroke of the Cuban revolutionary movement in this country will occur within thirty days. The principal leaders of this party in the United States gathered at Jacksonville two days ago, but yesterday afternoon went to Ocean Beach, where they stopped at the Strathmore hotel. In a room adjoining their room a Citizen correspondent overheard the whole of the deliberations. The six men who composed this revolutionary board were Carlos Decespedas, Gonzale de Quesada, Col. Enrique Collazo, Lieut. Thomas Collazo and two citizen of Ferdinando. As appeared from the conversation most expeditions had gone from Santo Domingo, but the board decided that the next big effort must be from the United States coast, south of Charleston, not only because of the necessary strength and character of the expedition, but because of innumerable bays and hundreds of rivers in which the fleet could with care hide or repel a much stronger force.

THE KNIGHTS ADJOURN.

To Meet at Nanaimo Next Year—Officers Installed.

Vancouver, B.C., June 7.—The Grand Lodge considered the constitution this morning, but postponed its final adoption for another year. The newly elected officers were installed by Supreme Representative Charles Crossan, Nanaimo. The following were elected district deputies for the Victoria lodges: T. Deasy, Far West, No. 1; Jas. Kirkwood, Sunset Lodge, No. 10; Andrew Rusta, Victoria, No. 17.

The session's labors being completed the lodge adjourned to meet the first Tuesday in 1896 at Nanaimo.

The Davaur Runs Ashore on the Irish Coast—400 Passengers Safely Landed.

Another Cloudburst Occurs in the Black Forest Region in Germany.

London, June 7.—The greatest interest is taken here in the prospects of an international athletic contest between the universities of Oxford and Cambridge and teams from the American universities. Naturally there are numerous comments on the challenge and the papers all express the hope that it will be accepted.

All the spars have been put in place on the Valkyrie III. at Glasgow, but it will require a week to complete the work of fitting her up. She is not ornamental, but her spread of sail is enormous and she is likely to fulfil the intention of her designer, which was to produce a thing of speed and not of beauty.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says Russia is making strong efforts to overcome the obstacles which interfere with the export of her cattle and meats to different European markets. At present no Russian cattle are exported to Austria, England, France or Germany, exports of such cattle being confined to Turkey, Greece and the Island of Malta. Russian meats are allowed in Germany, but the quarantine rules, it is contended, are being abused to its exclusion. England admits Russian meat, but complains of the quality. Lately it has been found very suitable for beef tea, and a demand has been created, it being used almost exclusively for that purpose. The largest consumer of imported meats is England, that country using 1,440,480,000 to 1,661,152,000 pounds annually. Russia exported in 1893 only 17,000 cattle, 82,000 hogs, 163,000 sheep and meat to the value of 175,000 roubles. The United States supplies about three-fourths of all the meat for the European demand.

The steamer Palatia, with Prince Hohenlohe and other members of the council of ministers aboard, traversed the Baltic canal for 100 kilometres, and demonstrated the complete success of the canal.

A Stuttgart dispatch says it is officially announced that the fatalities which resulted on Wednesday, June 5, from the cloud-burst over the Wurtemburg portion of the Black Forest amount to 500. At Balingen alone thirty houses were demolished by the rise in the waters of the river Eyracht and many other buildings were damaged.

Advices from Florence say that during the day the people became convinced that there was no danger and as there were no more shocks the panic subsided and everybody returned to their homes. No serious damage has been done by this latest subterranean disturbance.

The British steamer Davaur is ashore on Brigg's Reef near Belfast. Four hundred of her passengers have been landed by a coast guard boat. The steamer lies in an easy position and will probably be floated this evening. The Davaur has received assistance and will be floated on the next high tide in all probability. Brigg's Reef, the spot where the steamer went ashore, is situated near Bangor, County Down.

There was another cloud-burst at Stuttgart yesterday evening over the same district and Eyeacht valley was again flooded. The damage done upon this occasion is not known. Rems valley was also visited by a waterspout and there have been heavy thunderstorms throughout the southern portion of Wurtemburg. The Danube and Neckar are greatly swollen.

An official dispatch received at Berlin from Herr von Puttkammer, governor of the Ganenon district of German West Africa, announces that there has been severe fighting with the rebellious Bokoko tribes. Four strongholds of the rebels have been stormed by German colonial troops; two hundred tribesmen were killed and many others were captured. On the side of the Germans twelve colonial soldiers were killed and forty-seven wounded. In the list of casualties there are no Germans.

A small detachment of Spanish troops was surprised by a band of insurgents, five times stronger than the soldiers, and under command of Amadore Gurra, while the soldiers were temporarily guarding a plantation at Tatierno, near Manzanillo. Fierce fighting followed, in which the troops lost one sergeant and three soldiers killed and had seven wounded. On the other hand the insurgents were compelled to retire and left on the field four dead and nine wounded. The troops, assisted by a number of volunteers, pursued the fleeing insurgents and captured five prisoners. Another dispatch announces that a number of insurgents have been killed in a fight near the village of Gus, which was defended by a small detachment of troops commanded by Col. Capistani, and the Spanish soldiers vigorously replied to the fire of the enemy and the insurgents were eventually routed, leaving three dead on the field and carrying away their wounded.

A New York Doctor Takes a Leaf Out of Wilde's Book—On 'Change.

Washington, June 6.—Consul General Gernigan at Shanghai has sent to the State department his observations on the commerce between Japan and China and Corea, which he says will present new phases as the result of the termination of hostilities. He says that the competition among the Japanese merchants for Corean trade is vicious and has demoralized business. Mr. Gernigan calls attention to the fact that there is not in China or Japan a banking institution conducted by American capital. Great Britain, France and Germany have banks in China and Japan, he says, and the merchants of those countries are supported by banking institutions of their own and they have been dividing the profits of Asiatic commerce.

American merchants in Asia are compelled to transact their business through foreign banks. Not many years ago American interests were matters of consideration at Shanghai and American commerce whitened the Asiatic seas. Now other nations are pushing ahead, although geographically the United States should supply the markets of the swarming millions of Asia.

The reported retirement of Mr. Matsu, minister of foreign affairs, from the Japanese cabinet, has not been communicated to the Japanese legation here. It is stated that if Matu's retirement is true, it is doubtless due to ill-health, as he suffered from acute lung trouble, which was aggravated by the recent strain on his health in effecting the settlement with China.

San Francisco, June 6.—Seventeen survivors of the steamer Colima arrived here to-day on the San Juan. When she docked hundreds of friends and relatives of those who went down on the Colima were assembled awaiting the landing of the passengers. Groups of women with tear-stained faces and anxious men implored everyone on board for tidings of the lost, all hoping against hope that there might have been some mistake in the dispatches and some name omitted among the saved.

Port Angeles, Wash., June 6.—John Brown, Sr., an old resident and prominent man in this country, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He said to his wife before committing the deed that a revivalist, who is preaching through this section, had made him feel life was not worth living. He was a prominent and wealthy man, and the last man anyone would suspect of such intent.

Brasil, Ind., June 7.—Serious forest fires are raging in the northern part of this county and the southern part of Parke county, caused by railroad men burning old ties along the track. It is said about 300 acres of timber has been consumed by the flames, while some of the residence property is threatened. A large number of men have been constantly at work fighting the fire. The shafts at the mines of the Superior Coal Company, Isaac McIntosh Coal Company, the Swamp Angel mine and several others are threatened.

Springfield, Ill., June 7.—Secretary of State Henrichson, who is also chairman of the state central Democratic committee, is greatly pleased with the result of the recent silver convention and he declares the state committee will now start in upon national work, "with the Democratic party of Illinois behind it."

New York, June 6.—Bar silver, 69¾; stocks closed steady; Mexican dollars, 53¼.

The Evening Post cablegram says there was a decrease of a million pounds in the coin and bullion in the Bank of England this week, although £140,000 in gold net was imported for the week, the cash having gone into home circulation for the Whitsuntide recess.

The rumor cabled yesterday about a Chinese loan received practical confirmation from the best quarters.

The case of Dr. Alexander Tonner, of West 58th street, was before the grand jury to-day. While the charge originally preferred against him was that of exhibiting obscene pictures to a chance acquaintance in the public park last Sunday, it transpires that another and even more grave accusation has been made against the doctor. It grows out of the orgies that are alleged to have taken place in the doctor's home, where it is said was fitted up in a most luxurious manner. The decorations were of the Oriental order, and there, it is alleged, were many who called to see he doctor. Most of his visitors were said to have been young men. The case threatens to develop a scandal on a par with that of Cleveland street, London.

THE WRECK OF THE COLIMA

Due to Her Bulky Deck Load and Top-heavy Condition.

San Francisco, June 7.—Seventeen of the survivors of the wrecked steamer Colima have arrived here on the San Juan. The men saved from a watery grave when they had given up all hope of rescue were a sorry looking party when they arrived at the main docks. Some had their arms in slings and their heads and faces swathed in bandages. They limped as they walked and their bruises were painfully apparent. The stories of the survivors all conform the telegraphed account of the disaster. They agree that the cause of the foundering was due to the top-heavy condition of the Colima and to her bulky deck load. From the beginning of the voyage south they say the vessel acted badly and would not answer her helm. The passengers say there was not time to launch a boat or put on life preservers when they realized the serious plight of the Colima, and besides the fury of the storm made it impossible to touch or man the boats successfully.

NEWS OF THE DOMINION.

Doctor Barnardo's Creamery at Russell, Manitoba, Destroyed by Fire.

Montreal, June 7.—Yesterday afternoon Lord Aberdeen unveiled the monument erected to the memory of Sir John Macdonald. The proceedings began by the playing of "God Save the Queen" by the city regimental bands simultaneously. Sir Donald A. Smith then delivered the opening address, which was a warm eulogium of the dead statesman. The governor-general's oration followed. His Excellency's remarks did not occupy more than about a quarter of an hour. He recalled the estimation in which Sir John had been held in the country during his life time and the shock which the news of his death had caused throughout the British empire. His Excellency then pulled the string which released the fastenings and the drapery fell down and revealed the handsome statue. When the veil had been removed the Montreal Field Battery fired a salute. Addresses were then delivered by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Hon. G. E. Foster, Hon. John A. Chapleau, Sir Adolphe Caron, Sir H. G. Joly de Lotbiniere, Hon. J. A. Ouimet, and Hon. Dr. Montague.

Toronto, June 6.—Yesterday Hon. J. C. Aikens, ex-lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, and Mrs. Aikens celebrated their golden wedding. Amongst the friends present were the groomsman and bridesmaid who officiated at the marriage ceremony fifty years ago.

Peterboro, June 6.—A fashionable wedding was solemnized at St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, yesterday. The contracting parties were Henry Barnard, barrister, Victoria, B.C., son of F. S. Barnard, ex-M.P. for Yale, and Miss Ethel Burnham Rogers, daughter of Lieut.-Colonel H. C. Rogers, postmaster of Peterboro. Among the wedding guests were Frank S. Barnard, M.P. for Cariboo, brother of the groom, and J. A. Mara, M.P. for Yale, his brother-in-law.

Montreal, June 6.—Ernest Henry Butcher, aged twenty, died at the Royal Victoria hospital last evening. His relatives claim that he was fatally injured in a row with a street-car motorman. An inquest will be held.

Montreal, June 7.—At Dorval yesterday morning the residence of E. J. Whitehead was struck by lightning, and though almost demolished not one of the seven inmates received a scratch.

Montreal, June 7.—Wm. F. Smardon, boot and shoe merchant, assigned at the demand of Wm. B. Chapman, executor of the estate of J. & T. Stephens, with liabilities about $20,000.

The parishioners of Christ Church at a meeting last evening unanimously called Rev. Bradsham, of Port Arthur.

Toronto, June 7.—Henry Langford, an escaped convict from the Central prison, has been located at the Buffalo workhouse and a detective will leave to-day to bring him back.

THE YOUNG MOTHER AND HER BABE.

Young mother, is it necessary that you should use a prepared food for your babe? If you are obliged to do so, remember that the life of your darling depends upon your decision—we mean the character of food you select.

There are prepared and artificial foods that should never be brought into a home; their use means sickness, suffering and death to the young child.

The attention of every young mother is directed to life-giving and flesh-building Lactated Food, which is a perfect substitute for mothers' milk. This pure and unadulterated food agrees with the weakest stomach, it is easily assimilated, and is a perfect corrector of digestion. Babies thrive fast, grow fat and plump, hearty and happy when fed on Lactated Food.

CHAMBERLAIN'S NICKNAME.

Termed the Becky Sharp of English Political Life.

The Tories make good use of Mr. Chamberlain, but they do not all quite admire him. His adoration of rank is perhaps a little "wanting in finish," as Mr. Disraeli once said of Lord Salisbury's satire. Most of the Tories see this and quietly smile at it. After passing over to the camp of the Tories Mr. Chamberlain boasted in a public speech of the satisfaction it gave him to be in the society of English gentlemen. Some malign critic forthwith described him as the Becky Sharp of English political life. The phrase stuck (writes Mr. Justin McCarthy in the Forum), and Mr. Chamberlain was naturally displeased. The Tories of the stately old school see through all this sort of thing, and therefore were not bitterly grieved when Mr. Asquith scored such a victory over Mr. Chamberlain. I should doubt whether on the whole he is of great value to them as an ally. If he come back soon to power he will expect a very high place in the cabinet, and if he is not quite satisfied with what he gets he will be sure to reconsider the situation. Except for his own immediate friends and faithful personal followers, I do not suppose that anybody puts absolute trust in him.

CARLYLE AND HIS WAYS.

He Was Terrible in His Old Age if Crossed, But Enjoyed Fun.

The injunctions left by Mr. Froude in his will respecting the destruction of all papers in his possession relating to Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle revive many memories respecting the "Sage of Chelsea." During the Russian-Turkish war Mr. Carlyle's sympathies were, as was well known, sternly Russian, and any mention of the unspeakable Turk roused his wrath to a terrible extent. It was my good fortune to see a great deal of him in those days, and one night we met at the dinner-table of a friend; when he was specially wrathful at some incident which had occurred in connection with the conflict then going on.

To contradict him or argue with him was useless, as it would only fan the flames; so we all sat in silence listening to the torrent of vehement, angry abuse of the unfortunate Turks, who were then performing prodigies of valor against overwhelming odds. He harangued us for some time and received no response. The growlings of the thunder became lower and lower, and at last ceased with a loud laugh and chuckle at the conspiracy of silence, of which no one enjoyed the fun more than himself. He exclaimed, "Well, well! I see I am going to have the jaw all to myself," and quickly changed the subject, choosing another, in which we could all join in more or less modified agreement.

If not contradicted (and at his age very few cared to irritate the old man) he soon relinquished his soliloquy and fell into the conversation around him, puffing great clouds of smoke from his pipe and growling remarks of approval or dissent.

I always remember the last time I saw him, but a very short time before his death. He was lying on the sofa in the room so well known to us all; his goddaughter, a little girl of some 7 years, who had brought him a pair of warm gloves to wear, standing beside him.

He was very weary, and very tired of life, and the contrast was striking between the child on the threshold of life, with toys, its pleasures and its feebleness still unfolded, standing before the aged philosopher, whose dim eye and shrunk form told of a life struggle, weariness and unsatisfied longings—who had drunk the cup of life to its dregs; who had won fame, renown; who had left a name that would live in all time; who yet longed for death with passion ab longing.

It was one of the most dramatic pictures one had ever seen, and one that could never pass from the memory of those who saw it.—Lady Jeune in Realm.

Purified Blood

"A year ago my father, William Thompson, was taken suddenly ill with inflammation of the bladder. He suffered a great deal and was very low for some time. At last the doctor said he would not get well unless an operation was performed. At this time we read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before he used half a bottle his appetite had come back to him, whereas before he could eat but little. When he had taken three bottles of the medicine he was as well as ever." FRANCIS J. A DAY IN THE SENATE.

Premier Bowell's Answers in Respect of Proposed Railway Subsidies.

Following is the report of the recent senate discussion in reference to the New Westminster penitentiary and the railway subsidies:

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.)—Before the orders of the day are proceeded with, I desire to address the house on a question of privilege. I wish to call the attention of the senate to a letter which appeared in the Ottawa Citizen of last Thursday. It is as follows:

B. C. PENITENTIARY.

"Editor Citizen: In the first paragraph published on this institution in this morning's issue of the Citizen, the following is quoted from my annual report to the minister of justice: 'The subsequent career of many of the witnesses, notably of the accountant and storekeeper (a nephew of Senator McInnes, of British Columbia,) etc.' This is an error. It is not W. H. Keary, the dismissed accountant, but Thomas McInnes, late steward, and now a refugee in the United States, who is nephew to the polished and amiable senator referred to.

"The two quotations in the third paragraph appear to involve a contradiction. I said, 'As might be expected, the penetentiary was deteroriating these last two years.' And again, 'My inspection of this institution not having been made since October in 1892, I have no information to give regarding its administration.' This means information derived from my own personal knowledge and observation, but in my official capacity as inspector I had other sources of information, even from the acting warden, which enabled me to form an opinion as to the incompetency anad shortcoming of the present administration of the penitentiary. Hence the two statements can be reconciled as facts without being a "fling." Yours truly,

"J. G. MOYLAN.

"Ottawa, May 22."

With respect to the first part of that letter, I may say that I had a nephew in the position of steward in the British Columbia penitentiary for 12 or 14 years. During the investigation held last year, under a royal commission appointed by the federal government to investigate the irregularities in that institution, not one fact came out which would connect him with any wrongdoing in that institution. I have not seen the report of the commissioner, Mr. Justice Drake, since it was brought down in the other house, but I am aware that there was nothing in the evidence to show that he was in any way whatever connected with anything dishonorable or discreditable to himself or to anybody belonging to him. It is true that the accountant was discharged at the same time that the warden and deputy warden were discharged in October last, but my nephew was not discharged. He continued to perform his duties as steward of that institution until October last, when, of his own free will and accord, he resigned the position and went to live in the United States. To say that he was a refugee in the United States is an unqualified falsehood, and I am forced to state that this man Moylan, when he wrote those words, knew that he was writing that which was not true. With respect to the accountant, whose character Mr. Moylan wishes to impeach, I may say that he has occupied the position of alderman in the city of New Westminster for a great many years and is a man who is respected generally in that place. His bare word, as well as that of my nephew and of nearly every person who gave evidence on that occasion, would be taken in preference to the sworn statement of Fitzsimmons, or the late inspector of penitentiaries either. I do not intend to analyse that report. I shall wait until all the papers are before the house, when every member of the senate will be able to see for himself that I was right when a number of years ago I called attention to grave irregularities in the penitentiary. The investigation proved a great deal more than I even insinuated on that occasion, but I want to call the attention of the house to this fact, that ever since I made those statements on the floor of the senate this man Moylan has on every occasion that presented itself not only insulted me but other members of this house, and that too under the authority of the government in his annual report. I would call the attention of the hon. premier to the fact that there was no necessity whatever for Mr. Moylan, the late inspector, to announce the fact in his report that this Thomas A. McInnes was a nephew of mine. I am not ashamed of that nephew, but I would ask, in all fairness, am I to be held responsible for the actions of a nephew, or even of a much nearer relative? Would any hon. gentleman here be held responsible for the actions of their friends, however near and dear they may be to them, so long as those friends are not under their control or influence, and are of the full age of responsibility? This was a gratuitous insult, not only to me individually, but to every member occupying a seat in this house.

Hon. Mr. Kaulbach—I would ask my hon. friend and the house whether, on a question of privilege, the hon. gentleman can make a speech reflecting upon the character of a gentleman of intelligence and integrity, who is well known in the community and to the public at large? I do not think he can do this simply on a letter found in a newspaper.

Hon. Mr. Miller—The point is, whether when a writer in a newspaper, or the newspaper itself, calls a senator's nephew a fugitive from justice, the senator has the right, on a question of privilege, to defend his nephew, and attack the newspaper writer. He certainly cannot.

Hon. Mr. McInnes—Before a decision is given on the point that has been raised, I wish to call the attention of the hon. gentleman who has raised this question of order, to the fact that on two different occasions, to my personal knowledge, a question has been brought up in precisely the same was as I have brought this up. When the hon. gentleman from Delanaudiere was attacked by this impudent fellow Moylan, I brought it up myself, and it was discussed here for some two or three hours—the whole of one afternoon—by more than a dozen hon. gentlemen on the floor of this house.

Hon. Mr. Miller—If the hon. gentleman himself were attacked he would have a right to defend himself if it came under the class of privilege, but we have no right to take advantage of our seats in this house to defend anybody but ourselves on a question of privilege.

Hon. Mr. McInnes—That is precisely what I am doing.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (B. C.)—The hon. member for Richmond will see this: a government official attacks a member of this house and tries to connect his name with a criminal, a person whose word is alleged to be unreliable, and this house ought to give every liberty and facility to that hon. gentleman to clear his own character, and if he attacks Mr. Moylan for going out of his way to put his name in a report where it should not be, Mr. Moylan deserves all the lashing this house can give him.

Hon. Mr. Miller—I am not here as the advocate of Mr. Moylan. I am not expressing approval of anything that Mr. Moylan has done. I have not read the letter. I am not prepared to say what judgment I would pass upon it if I had read it. But the point to which I wish to call the attention of this house is this, that I do not think it is within the scope of the question of privilege for a member to attempt to defend any one but himself.

Hon. Mr. McInnes—I quite agree with what the hon. gentleman states, but if the hon. gentleman paid attention to the letter when I read it, he would see that I am directly attacked through the medium of my nephew.

Hon. Mr. Bellerose—Hear, hear.

Hon. Mr. McInnes—The letter reads: "This is an error. It was not W. H. Kearey, the dismissed accountant, but Thomas McInnes, late steward, and now a refugee in the United States, who is a nephew to the polished and amiable senator referred to.

Hon. Mr. Angers—That is not an attack.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.)—It is an implied slander. There is no question about it.

Hon. Mr. Miller—It may be that—on the nephew.

Hon. Mr. McInnes—I am not prepared to go on to debate this question of privilege, but I do claim that I am doing what is the duty of every member of this honorable house when he is attacked, especially by a civil servant, or a person in a still worse position, a man who has been superannuated, and is living on the taxpayers of this country. In my place in the senate, over six years ago, I called attention to scandals in a public institution and my statements were subsequently proved to be all true. If I can be attacked with impunity by the man who should have prevented these irregularities, I think that this house has fallen very low indeed if it will not defend itself. This Mr. Moylan is an old offender. Within the last six years he has been called to account for similar misconduct no less than twice to my personal knowledge. During the incumbency of the late premier, Sir John Abbott, Mr. Moylan made an unjustifiable attack on the hon. member for Delanaudiere in his annual report. He was brought to task for it, censured and punished. Even the $500 that was placed in the estimates for an increase of his salary was wiped out upon that occasion, and he was then cautioned, not only by the late Sir John Thompson, but also by the late Sir John Abbott, that if he should be found guilty of any such offence again he would be suspended or severely dealt with. Two years after that he attacked me in his report, and that attack appeared in the annual report of the minister of justice. It was done without the knowledge of the minister or the deputy minister of justice. Mr. Moylan only showed it to the private secretary, and it was smuggled into the departmental report in that way. I found that out subsequently. I was perfectly satisfied that Sir John Thompson would never lend himself to anything so low and unworthy as that. He was then summoned to appear before the bar of this house. But on the following day, before the meeting of the senate, he apologized to this house and Sir John Thompson gave a pledge that he would not offend another time. Now, unfortunately for this house, and I may say for the country, when Sir John Thompson dismissed the warden, the deputy warden and the accountant of the British Columbia penitentiary, he made a fatal mistake that he did not dismiss this J. G. Moylan, because when the papers are brought down I can show very conclusively that he was probably the cause of nearly all the irregularities, all the wrongdoings and all the malfeasance in office in connection with that institution. It may be contended by some hon. gentlemen that now he is not in the employ of the government, as he is superannuated,—that the government have no control over him. If there are any in this house holding such views as these I claim—

Hon. Mr. Kaulbach—I rise to a question of privilege. I appeal to the chair.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.)—There is a question of privilege before the house at the present time.

Hon. Mr. Kaulbach—The question is whether my hon. friend can go on with this tirade of abuse against a gentleman who is not in the civil service, and not in the employ of the government. It is entirely beyond his privilege. He is entirely out of order. It is contrary to the practice of this house to abuse the character of a man who stands as high as any hon. gentleman in this house.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—I would like to call the attention of the house to the fact that when a question of order is raised it is the duty of the speaker to sit down until it is decided. The hon. member must have forgotten that.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.)—I did not forget it. The hon. gentleman rose to a question of privilege he stated, and not a question of order.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—Then it was an act of discourtesy to the hon. gentleman as well as to the house. I was charitable enough to think the hon. gentleman had forgotten the rule for the moment.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.)—The hon. gentleman rose to a question of privilege, and not in order, consequently I was perfectly justified in not sitting down—it was discourtesy to the house.

Hon. Mr. Miller—The hon. gentleman from Lunenburg in his last remarks used the word privilege instead of order, but when he first took the floor he rose to a question of order.

Hon. Mr. Kaulbach—I ask the ruling of the chair on the question of order.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.)—I throw myself on the indulgence of the house. This man Moylan is, or ought to be, under the control of the government, just as much as if he were in their employ. He has been superannuated, but surely we are not going to allow superannuated civil servants to have free scope to attack members of this house and of the other branch of parliament with impunity and without redress. I appeal to the premier if it is not his bounden duty—a duty that he owes to himself, to this house and to this country—that this man's superannuation should be immediately stopped, or that he should be cautioned that if he attacks any member of this or the other branch of parliament it will be stopped, notwithstanding anything that the counsel for the late inspector may have to say to the contrary in this house.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—I do not propose to follow the hon. gentleman in the remarks that he has made, because I am strongly of the opinion that the matter brought up by him is not a question of privilege in any sense of the word. If every attack that is made upon a public man in a newspaper, either by inference or directly, is to be considered a question of privilege, there are very few of us who could not occupy the time of the house during half of the session.

Hon. Mr. Perley—We would not want any adjournment.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—In the other house it has grown into practice to explain any attack made upon a member in the public press, and also to defend oneself. I do not wish to be understood as approving in any way of the parenthetical sentence put into the report of Mr. Moylan. On the contrary, I had a conversation only last Saturday with the minister of justice, who authorized me to state, when the question came up in this house, that he deeply regretted it himself; and how it got into the report he could not understand; that when he read the report as presented to him, he put his pen through the reference to the hon. gentleman, considering it irrelevant; and how it got in afterwards he does not know. I told him that I should take the first opportunity to explain the matter to the house. For my own part I think it reprehensible on the part of any public servant, or of the public press, to associate a gentleman's name with that of another who may have done wrong, simply because he happens to be a connection by marriage or by blood. I do not know of any meaner mode of attack. Still, I question very much whether it becomes a question of privilege that should be brought up in this house. I have the report before me, and the house will see that the reference to the hon. gentleman was altogether unnecessary. The inspector says in his report: "The subsequent career of many of these witnesses, notably the accountant and storekeeper;" and then he puts in parenthesis, "nephew of Senator McInnes of B. C."

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (B. C.)—That is the third offence of the same kind.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—Now that the hon. gentleman has called attention to it, I remember that Mr. Moylan was taken to task for a similar offence before, but I can only say, so far as the minister of justice is concerned, that he was not aware that it was punished until his attention was called to it by the questions on the paper. How far the hon. gentleman's suggestion in reference to dealing with Mr. Moylan's superannuation could be acted upon is a question that I shall have to leave to the lawyers to decide. My own impression is that he is as independent of the government to-day as the hon. gentleman is himself. We have no control whatever over him, and he has the same right that every other citizen has to write articles in the newspapers, if they think proper to publish them, and he must be held individually responsible, whether in courts of law or otherwise, for his conduct. I deeply regret, as a member of the government, and I desire to express equally the regret of the minister of justice, that a report coming from any department of the government should, even inferentially, attack any hon. gentleman. I do not know that the remark made by Mr. Moylan in that letter that has been read would be considered a slander. He says that the hon. gentleman from British Columbia is "polished and amiable." If he had added "handsome" he would not have said anything in excess. If debate would justify the bringing of such matters before this house, I think I might mention quite a number of newspapers in which I have been ridiculed in a way that has amused me and my friends, and disgusted some of my family, who think that it should not be allowed.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (B. C.)—Not by pensioners of the government.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—We have nothing to do with the pensioners of the governments.

Hon. Mr. McInnes—Withhold their

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—There is no law which would justify the government in doing so. If you think the offence is so grave as to justify that, it is a matter which we can consider in the future.

Hon. Mr. McInnes inquired—

"Is it the intention of the government to reappoint Arthur McBride, late warden, and William Keary, late accountant, to the wardenship and accountantship, respectively, of the New Westminster penitentiary? If not, why not?"

He said: The reason why I ask the last question "If not, why not?" is this—it was proven during the investigation that both the warden and the accountant were merely carrying out the instructions given them by the deputy warden and the inspector of penitentiaries—that the warden was a mere figurehead—placed in that unfortunate position by the inspector, and had to carry out the instructions given him by the deputy. Of the three men the guilty person was reappointed, while the comparatively innocent men were not reappointed.

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—It is not the intention of the government to reappoint Arthur McBride, late warden, and William Keary, late accountant, to the wardenship and accountantship, respectively, of the New Westminster penitentiary. Reason, on account of their unsatisfactory records while holding such positions. If the statement made by the hon. gentleman, that the warden was a mere figurehead and only carried out the orders of a subordinate, is true, it is the very best reason why he should not be reinstated.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.) inquired:—

"1. Was it on the recommendation of a member of the Dominion parliament from British Columbia that James Fitzsimmons was reappointed deputy warden of the New Westminster penitentiary? If so, what is the name of the member?"

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—Deputy wardens in Canadian penitentiaries are appointed on the responsibility and on the recommendation of the minister of justice, and not on the recommendation of a member of parliament. This course was followed in the case of James Fitzsimmons.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.) inquired:—

"Has Mr. James Dunsmuir, of Victoria, British Columbia, president of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo railway company, or any one else on behalf of said railway company, applied for the usual railway subsidy of $3200 per mile to assist in extending their road from Wellington to Comox? If so, is it the intention of the government to grant the application?"

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—Mr. Dunsmuir has made application for a subsidy of $3200 per mile for the extension of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo railway from Wellington to Comox. The finance minister made the announcement in the house of commons a short time ago (which is now repeated) that the government does not contemplate granting any cash subsidies to railways this session.

Hon. Mr. McInnes (B. C.) inquired:—

"Has Mr. R. P. Rithet, of Victoria, British Columbia, vice-president of the British Pacific railway company, or any one else on behalf of said railway company, applied for the usual railway subsidy of $3200 per mile to assist in building their railway? If so, is it the intention of the government to grant the application?"

Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell—No application has been made by Mr. R. P. Rithet or anyone else for a subsidy of $3,200 per mile in aid of the construction of the "British Pacific Railway."

PENITENTIARY MATTERS.

Senator McInnes was naturally and rightly indignant at the outrage which ex-Inspector Moylan was allowed to put upon him, through the carelessness or the complaisance of the ministers. It is rather singular that an ex-officer and pensioner should be able, through the medium of an official report, to insult a member of the senate, simply because that member has been largely instrumental in the exposure of a scandal for which the ex-officer and his pets were responsible. Nor is the situation made much better by the explanation of Sir Hibbert Tupper that his pen was drawn through the offending phrase, which afterwards cropped up in the report nevertheless. It is surely time that Mr. Moylan's outbreaks of virulence and impudence were put an end to in some way. It must be said, however, that the Dominion government's conduct in regard to this penitentiary matter has been remarkable all the way through, and the tone adopted by ministers and their supporters in defending the impertinent ex-inspector is entirely characteristic. A most noticeable feature of the affair is the ministerial fear of the light. With regard to the reluctance to bring down papers bearing on the subject the Columbian says:

It is nearly two months since parliament met, and a month and a half almost since the papers, correspondence, etc., in the Fitzsimmons case were formally asked for in the house. And the bulk of the papers due have not yet been brought down! The government appeared only too willing to lay before the house certain practically irrelevant and impertinent letters of the deputy warden, in which he answered the indictment of the royal commission against himself by abusing and maligning the court, prosecutors, and witnesses. These letters, though in such a sense an insult to the public intelligence, constitute the sole explanation or excuse that the government have given, so far, for their extraordinary action in reinstating Fitzsimmons, after the sweeping condemnatory findings of the royal commission, and his dismissal by the late Sir John Thompson.

The report of the commissioner was next, evidently reluctantly, brought down, and it fully justified the public verdict upon the evidence adduced at the commission. But the instructions issued to Mr. Justice Drake on his appointment as commissioner; the official report of the evidence taken at the commission; and the presumed correspondence or other explanation that is required to throw some light upon the dark mystery of the government's inexplicable and inexcusable action in the premises, are still non est; and silence like a pall has settled down upon the question at Ottawa.

This desperate "sparring for time" on the part of the federal authorities in this matter is a pitiable spectacle truly; but it will be all in vain if it is expected thereby to finally thwart the public demand for a complete exposure of the scandal and of the government's scandalous action therein.

Anent the classification of British Columbia cedar under the United States tariff, the Canadian Lumberman says: "It is difficult to understand why the treasury department at Washington should rule that the red cedar of British Columbia must come under a 25 per cent. duty. The case, as presented by British Columbia lumbermen, through Mr. J. G. Scott, was really unanswerable on its merits, and this was the view taken by the New York board of appraisers. What consistency was there in ruling that the red cedar of British Columbia was not a cabinet wood, and therefore ought not to be classed among cabinet woods, and yet charge an impost on it as one of them? It is said the department ruled that the cedar of the Pacific coast was cedar in the general commercial sense, and though botanically it might vary a little from a true cedar, nevertheless it was cedar still. It may be a cedar in name, it is not a cedar in point of fact. It has been generally admitted by leading lumber journals of the United States that it was through an oversight that it was placed under the cabinet schedule in the first place. The West Coast Lumberman in its latest issue says: 'There is but little doubt that the duty on cedar was laid on through a careless wording of the act.' The Timberman, and other journals have voiced the same thought. The government at Washington have no reasonable grounds for ruling out red cedar from under the free trade tariff. Their own officers, the New York appraisers, and the lumber press generally, without regard to their particular opinions on the question of free trade, are of one mind on the matter. Without the necessity for further protest on the part of Canadian lumbermen, it is to be hoped that the authorities at Washington will at once remove cause for friction in this particular, as the Canadian government have absolutely removed cause in the case of the boom difficulty with Michigan lumbermen."

Tory papers seem to take comfort from the fact that a number of ministerial members were absent when the vote on Sir Richard Cartwright's amendment was taken. If all the members had been present, they say, the majority would have been much larger. It might as well be said that if all the members were Conservative the amendment would have been rejected unanimously. The fact is that some of the Conservative members were away because they did not care to vote against a revenue tariff proposition and did not care to vote against the government.

Speaking of the budget debate the Colonist's Ottawa correspondent avers that "if the government could have had its way the discussion would have terminated on the very first day." Doubtless the assertion is quite correct, and it would further be correct to say that the government would have closed the discussion with the end of Mr. Foster's speech if it had been able. That would have saved it many uncomfortable quarter-hours. But then the country would not have had the benefit of that "brilliant effort" said to have been offered by the secretary of state, and that would surely have been a calamity. Surely it would have been too bad to have cut off so important a feature of the debate.

SOUTH PARK SCHOOL ENQUIRY.

To the Editor:—At the investigation conducted by the board of trustees this afternoon I protested in the most vehement manner against what I deemed a breach of faith on the part of the board. At a meeting held a few days ago at the secretary's office I was deputed by the board to see Mr. Futcher, the complainant in the matter, relative to the employment of a lawyer. I told him the board would not employ one if he did not. Judge of my surprise to see Mr. Helyen present in the room as advocate for Miss Cameron!!! Four members of the board voted for his being allowed to be present, Mr. Glover being absent, Mr. Lewis and myself voting in the negative. I asked that a reporter be present; this also was disallowed. I agreed to allow the presence of a lawyer in that part of the enquiry in which Miss Cameron's conduct as principal was impugned, but in those matters in which the character of a defenceless girl under the age of 14 was called in question I claimed that it was a glaring injustice to allow by implication one party to go unrepresented by legal advice, and that the weakest. By such inconsistent irregularities the public men of this city are justly held in contempt. As a protest I ask you to insert this letter.

The Cosmopolitan gives several handsome reproductions from the Paris salons of 1895, accompanied by a critique from the pen of Charles Yriart. W. J. Hutchinson completes his paper on "The Pleasant Occupation of Finding Bees," which is full of instruction for the apiarist. Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen writes entertainingly of the Chautauqua movement and J. Howe Adams of bathing at continental seaside resorts, both articles being profusely illustrated. "Whist in America and How to Play It" is the subject of a timely paper by Richard A. Proctor, which will be read by many readers. The fiction, the poetry and the art and science departments are all good as usual, which is praise enough for readers of the Cosmopolitan.

THE BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

The Baptists of British Columbia and northwest Washington convened on Tuesday last at the newly built town of Everett, Washington—a town of four or five thousand people situate at the mouth of the Snohomish river. A large delegation from Victoria left by the steamship Rosalie, including the two pastors, Revs. P. H. McEwen and Ralph Trotter, of this city. Upon arrival at 7:30 devotional services were led by Pastor Cairns, the oldest minister of the association in active work, and at 8:30 p.m. Rev. C. L. Brownlee, of North Seattle, preached the annual sermon, after which Rev. W. T. Butler, Congregational minister, welcomed the association to Everett.

On Wednesday morning the association convened for praise and prayer meeting, presided over by Mr. W. Marchant, of Victoria. Visiting brethren and newly appointed ministers were welcomed by the association as follows: Revs. G. C. King, lately baptised from the Reformed Episcopal church; Rev. Ralph Trotter, pastor of Calvary church, Victoria; Rev. D. Lamont, of Saanich district; Rev. W. H. Carmichael, of Hamilton and Woolley church, Rev. F. O. Lamorux, of Port Angeles and Port Townsend; Rev. I. Cashman, of Ballard; Rev. C. L. Holen, Norwegian pastor of Ballard; Rev. Clark Eckhert, of Mount Vernon and Bro. A. W. McLeod, Y.M.C.A. secretary, of Vancouver.

The officers of the association were elected as follows: Rev. J. C. Baker, moderator; Dr. L. Mackechnie, clerk; treasurer, Deacon D. W. Walker. An able sermon was delivered by Rev. P. H. McEwen, of Victoria, on "The Holy Spirit our Greatest Need." The meeting adjourned at 12:30 for lunch, which was served by the ladies of the church upon the church premises. Reports of the following churches were read in the afternoon: From the Ballard (First), Ballard, (Swede), Ballard, (Norwegian), Fendale, Fairhaven, Hamilton, Everett, Kent, Kirkland, La Conner, Newcastle, (colored), Nanaimo, New Westminster, New Whatcom, Port Townsend, Victoria, (Calvary and Emmanuel), Vancouver, (First), Woolley, Seattle, (First church, North Market street, Norwegian), Snohomish, by which it was shown that the depression had both interfered with general work and progress of the churches and also their financial condition. Skagit city Baptist church and the Davis Memorial Baptist church, of Mount Vernon, sought admission into the association and were received.

The Sunday schools reported were 32; teachers, 297; pupils enrolled, 2,200; average attendance, 1,700; baptisms from the schools, 30. The churches reported a membership of 2,731, which is a small increase on 1893-4 of 11 persons.

Rev. J. C. Baker delivered an address upon the need of teaching the fundamental truths of religion to the Sunday schools.

Evening meeting convened at 7:30 for the Young People's rally. Miss Margaret Cairns read a paper entitled "Junior Work," in which she urged the necessity of the conversion of the young and their direct training in lines of Christian activity.

Rev. W. T. Fleenor delivered an address upon B.Y.P.U. work. With great ingenuity he used these initials to show that Baptist Young People's Unions should be: 1st. Be your pastor's usher. 2nd. Be your pastor's umbrella. 3rd. Be your pastor's unction. 4th. Be your pastor's under action. 5th. Be your pastor's upright. 6th. Be your pastor's under score. 7th. Be your pastor's uplift; and each heading was dealt with in a very forcible and lucid manner.

Rev. Ralph Trotter, of Victoria, delivered an address upon "The kind of people God needs for his work." He said that when a man applied for admission into the army in England they asked "Who is his father?" in Germany, "What does he know?" in France, "How does he act?" in America, "What is he worth?" In God's army all kinds were needed, for the Lord could use all material; yet for special work the 300 of Gideon's army were alone required for the emancipation of Israel. God never uses a frightened or discouraged man, and young people should be strong and of good courage. He would rather have zeal without knowledge, than knowledge without zeal. Consecrated enthusiasm is the great need of the world and the church.

On Wednesday morning the association convened at 9 a.m. for praise and prayer meeting, presided over by Rev. G. C. King.

The temperance report was brought before the association by Mrs. McDowell, the chief points of which were "the pledging of members to vote against all forms of license 'high or low,' and the disuse of tobacco in all its forms, especially cigarettes." Discussion followed in which Messrs. Marchant, Walker, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. McNaughton, Mrs. Cairns, Revs. W. C. Weir, Clark, Eckhert, W. T. Fleenor, C. F. Brownlee, D. [illegible] and Ralph Trotter took part.

The report on education was read by Pastor Cairns, which mainly dealt with the work of Dr. Pierce in connection with the University of Seattle. Discussion followed, led by Dr. Pierce, who gave a resume of the educational work upon the Pacific coast and pointed out that the great need of the hour was to lay hold upon the secondary educational work of the denomination. A great number of the delegates took part in the discussion, a proposal made by the board of trustees for the University of Seattle to canvass [illegible] the denomination for funds to enlarge their buildings being received with some dissent.

The women's branch of association work held the floor for the afternoon session under the presidency of Mrs. J. C. Keith. The programme included addresses and reports of state work, general work, training school, notes from the field, work among the Jews, work among the Mormons, and the responsibility of not doing. Mesdames Cairns, Aines, Taylor, A. A. Williams, McNaughton and others took part in the discussion. Mrs. Clyde contributed two solos.

The association again convened at 4 under the presidency of Rev. J. C. Baker, Rev. D. D. Proper read the report of the home mission work, which showed that he funds had been largely depleted through the financial stress. The Northwest convention board closed its second quarter of the present year, 1894-5, with $1,000 behind, only $300 yet having been contributed from all parts of the field. Out of 18 churches in the association only five are self-supporting, 13 pastors being partially supported by the home mission treasury. In speaking to the adoption of the report Rev. D. D. Proper urged that although many churches had been planted and buildings erected where, in the light of later events, they should probably not have been planted or built, yet they could not go back upon their interests created. He announced that the home mission board of New York had agreed to increase the appropriation from $4 to $5 for every $1 raised upon the field. He also told how the New York board had feared an increased deficit of $7,000, making, with a former indebtedness, $108,000, but during the making of the report to the annual meeting at Saratoga, N. Y., the whole of the indebtedness had been wiped out, by legacies left by various donors for home mission work.

Rev. S. A. Abbott, district missionary, spoke upon "The evangelization of the field." He told of Dr. Morehouse's addresses at the annual missionary May meetings, which contained these four points: forecast, seize, hold, develop. In this western field we had been forecasting and seizing, but had not been able to hold, or develop very much. Every church should be an evangelistic church; pastors should leave their churches once or twice per month and preach in the outside districts. Members of the churches, both men and women, should go out to do God's work amongst the community in which they lived.

Dr. Pierce read the report upon religious literature. The order of reading should be; first, systematic study of the Bible, using Sunday school helps not as principals, but as auxiliaries; secondly, one national Baptist paper (Standard especially recommended); third, The Pacific Baptist; fourth, Sunday schools were urged not to purchase even light denominational religious fiction for their libraries.

Rev. S. W. Reaven told of the new home now being built for the children of Baptist foreign missionaries. He traced the inception of this work to the directing hand of God. The home is being built at Vashon island, Washington, and the only charge on the denomination would be the furnishing of the home. After it was commenced it should and would probably be self-supporting. A number of questions were asked and answered and the hearty support of the denomination was pledged.

The evening meeting was addressed by Rev. P. Sunderland and others upon foreign missions.

The Tuesday afternoon session was signalized by the introduction of a very important resolution by Mr. W. Marchant, but which could not be properly discussed through lack of time. It was laid upon the table to be re-considered at future association meetings. The following is the text of the resolution:

Whereas the observance of the divinely appointed ordinances is incumbent upon every Believer, and whereas in many districts covered by this association there are many churches without pastors and many pastors without churches receiving the administration of the word from brethren who have not been specially set aside for the gospel ministry, and whereas the scriptures which are hereby declared to be our sole authority for all doctrine and practice do not enjoin nor imply any special gifts requisite for the administration to believers of baptism or the Lord's Supper. Be it resolved that this association declares its opinion that all Christian believers of good standing in our churches are competent to [illegible] under the wise overseeing

PLEADS MORAL INNOCENCE

J. C. Prevost Pleads Legally Guilty, But Morally Innocent of the Charge

Of Carrying Passengers Aboard the Barge Pilot Without a License.

J. C. Prevost, owner of the barge Pilot, admits he is legally guilty, but claims that he is morally innocent of the charge of, while owner of the Pilot, carrying passengers and for which the barge had no license. The case was called in the provincial police court this morning, Magistrate Macrae presiding. Mr. Drake, of Drake, Jackson & Helmcken, appeared for the Dominion government, and Mr. Prevost, who was his own counsel, was armed with a number of legal authorities bearing on similar cases.

Magistrate Macrae read the charge and asked Mr. Prevost how he pleaded.

Mr. Prevost replied "not guilty."

Mr. Drake said that Mr. Prevost had misled him. He told him that he would plead guilty.

Mr. Prevost insisted that he had not misled Mr. Drake. He did not deny the facts. He continued: "I am half owner of the barge Pilot. The late Mr. Adams was the other owner. I admit the facts, but it was done without my knowledge and consent, and in that I was not guilty."

Mr. Drake—"I apply for an adjournment to bring witnesses. Mr. Prevost has practically pleaded guilty."

Mr. Prevost protested there was no necessity for an adjournment. He admitted the facts, but denied the moral responsibility.

Mr. Drake said he would have to get witnesses and prove the whole case now that Mr. Prevost pleaded not guilty. He asked for an adjournment until the 13th inst.

Mr. Prevost contended that there were no passengers aboard the Pilot. There were "persons" on board, but they were not passengers according to the legal interpretation.

Magistrate Macrae said it was a question of law.

Mr. Drake again said he would have to prove the case in its entirety.

The court was adjourned till Thursday, the 13th inst.

Mr. Prevost is prosecutor under the Steamboat Inspection Act as amended by the Act of Vic. 55-56, Chap. 9 enumerates: . . . . . And no such vessel shall, while so towed, have on board a greater number of passengers than she is certified as being fit to carry safely. . . . . For any violation of this section the master and the owner of the tug boat, and the owner and person in charge of such barge, boat, bateau, scow or vessel carrying passengers shall each incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars."

The term "passengers" is not defined in the act, and Mr. Prevost has a number of legal authorities to cite that a "passenger" is he who pays transportation.

The Pilot was the barge in tow of the tug Velos, which was sunk off Trial island with loss of life two months ago.

NANAIMO NEWS.

The Nanaimo-Rossland Company Will Begin Operations

Nanaimo, June 7.—A company to be known as the Nanaimo-Rossland Mining Co., Ltd., is being formed for the purpose of mining in the Kootenay country. The capital stock of the company is placed at $500,000 in shares of $1.00 per share. It is only intended to issue $25,000 worth of stock for the present. The Rossland Miner of June 1st says: "A. Hall, P. T. McCormick, J. Keeler, N. Mackenzie and A. M. Leitch received the cash payment on the sale of the White Elephant, Louise and Elizabeth No. 2 to-day. Colonel Jenkins came inlast night and paid the money on behalf of the promoters of the Nanaimo-Rossland Mining corporation to-day. The deal was made for $2,000 in cash and $25,000 of paid up stock in the Nanaimo-Rossland corporation at the price of 25 cents per share. The company is to be formed and the shares divided within sixty days from to-day. This is one of the quickest and luckiest turns ever made in a mining camp. Hall & McCormick, who were grub staked by the other partners, were out only a few days when they ran onto the big showing, and it was less than a week before the ground was snapped up by Colonel Jenkins. Development work will be commenced on the property on Monday.

The Wellington Horticultural, Agricultural and Industrial Society will hold their first show on Sept. 20th and 21st.

St. Alban's branch of the C. E. T. S. held their annual picnic yesterday on Newcastle Island. The outing was greatly enjoyed.

The sculling match, postponed from May 24, will be pulled on Saturday evening. There are quite a number of entries and the match promises to be interesting.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Son of H. Phipps Run Over and Instantly Killed on the E. & N. Railway.

The four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Phipps of McKenzie's Pit, on the E. & N. railway, was run over by the southbound train at noon to-day and instantly killed. Mr. Phipps is an employee of the railway and lives with his family in a cabin a few yards from the track. The little boy, the victim of the accident, was standing near the track when the train was approaching and not knowing the danger stepped on the track. The air brakes were immediately put on but it was just too late, the child falling under the cowcatcher and the front wheel of the locomotive passing over its thigh, exposing the intestines. The mother and father were in the cabin and hearing the air brakes being applied rushed to the door in time to see the danger their child was in, but too late to save it. When they reached the track the child was dead. The mother was prostrated with grief.

The accident occupying such a short space of time there was sure to be some difference of opinion as to how it occurred, but none attach any blame to Engineer Hughes, who was in charge of the train. There are some who think that the child was driven under by the draught from the train.

The body was taken to the city on this evening's train and an inquest held to-morrow.

The passengers on the noon train drew up and signed a letter of condolence, which will be forwarded to the bereaved parents.

TO-MORROW'S ATTRACTIONS.

A Number of Interesting Events Arranged For Saturday Afternoon.

The programme of sports which will come off to-morrow afternoon is almost of the nature of a celebration day instead of an ordinary Saturday half-holiday entertainment. The fine band of the B.C.B.G.A., under the leadership of J. M. Finn, will play at Beacon Hill park from 3 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. An unusually attractive programme has been arranged and the park will no doubt be thronged with visitors on the occasion of the first of the series of summer concerts.

The Society of Scottish Clans has with commendable enterprise provided an excellent programme of horse races for the afternoon, which will no doubt attract a large crowd.

The baseball match at Caledonia park between the boys from the Coal City and the Amities will probably be witnessed by a large number, as this event has been looked forward to with great interest.

The tug-of-war in the evening between the firemen and Scotsmen, at the Market Hall, will be a drawing card, as the fine band of the Royal Arthur will attend and discourse sweet music during the pastime.

The B.C.B.G.A. band also plays at Oak Bay in the evening and this popular affair is sure of the usual large attendance.

A cricket match between teams of the Albion and Victoria cricket clubs is another of the attractions at the hall to-morrow afternoon.

EXPORTATION OF DEERSKINS

Chief Justice Davie Gives Judgment for the Province Yesterday.

Section of the Game Law Dealing With the Matter Held to be Intra Vires.

Judgment was given for the province by the Chief Justice yesterday in the appeal of Boscowitz & Sons against a police court conviction for having deer skins in their possession with intent to export. The judgment in full follows:

In the matter of an appeal from the decision of Farquhar Macrae, S.M., for Victoria. Between Frederick S. Hussey, respondent, and Joseph Boscowitz, appellant.

Section 7 of the "Game Protection Act, 1895," provides that no person shall at any time purchase or have in possession with intent to export or cause to be exported, or carried out of the limits of the province, any, or any portion of the animals or birds mentioned in this act (deer are animals mentioned in the act) in their raw state.

The present appeal comes before the court by way of a case stated under clause 900 of the code, from a conviction of the appellant for unlawfully having in his possession with intent to export, certain portions, to wit, hides in their raw state, of an animal mentioned in the "Game Protection Act, 1895," to wit, a deer, contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided; and paragraph 1 of the case states that "it was admitted by the appellant that the proceedings had before the magistrate were legal and regular, and that if the provisions of section 7 of the 'Game Protection Act, 1895,' were intra vires of the provincial legislature of the Province of British Columbia, the conviction was properly made."

But the evidence upon which the conviction proceeded is annexed to the case, and expressly by paragraph 2 thereof made part of the case; and from that evidence it appears that the collection of furs, the subject of the present charge, were obtained not from British Columbia only but from the adjacent foreign islands as well. I take it to be clear that, as regards skins of animals slaughtered in the adjacent foreign islands, there is nothing in the act to prohibit their export, nor the having them in possession for export purposes, any more than the skins of deer killed by Indians or settlers in the unorganized districts of the province for the immediate necessities of food (section 17 of the act distinctly enacting that its provisions shall not apply to these cases); and I think probably there would be nothing to prevent the exportation of the hides of deer killed by a farmer when found depasturing within his cultivated fields. In any of these cases, I take it, an exception arises, making the export of hides permissible; and there is nothing in this case to show that the hides which are the subject matter of these proceedings are not within the exception; on the contrary, the hides coming from the foreign islands are clearly so. I call attention to these exceptions, as it will be necessary that some regulations should be made to govern future cases, and casting upon the defence the onus of setting up and proving the exceptions.

As, however, for the purpose of this argument the parties have agreed to waive consideration of these points, and, in the language of the case, have agreed: "That if the provisions of section 7 are intra vires of the province the conviction is properly made," I pass to the consideration of this last question.

Section 7 is attacked as being a restriction of trade and commerce; and that the Dominion parliament alone, under its general power of legislation, and under its particular powers in connection with the regulation of trade and commerce, may declare what goods may or may not be exported from Canada.

As bearing upon the point involved in this case, section 91 of the British North American Act gives to the parliament of Canada, besides the power generally to make laws in relation to all matters not coming within the classes of subjects by the act assigned exclusively to the provinces, the exclusive jurisdiction to legislate for, among other things, the regulation of trade and commerce; Whilst, by section 92, the province may exclusively make laws in relation to: (13) property and civil rights in the province; and, (16), generally all matters and things of a merely local or private nature in the province."

With the view then of testing the validity of the section in question, and acting upon the principle of interpretation laid down by the Privy Council in Dobie vs. The Temporalities Board, L. R., 7 App. Cas. 136; "The first step to be taken is to consider whether the subject matter of the act falls within any of the classes of subjects enumerated in section 92. If it does not, then these further questions may arise, viz.: Whether, notwithstanding that it is so, the subject of the act does not also fall within one of the enumerated classes of subjects in section 91, and whether the power of the provincial legislature is not thereby over-borne."

Undoubtedly in many cases the subject matter of legislation involves matter to some extent common to both sections 91 and 92; for instance, the distribution of estates and discharge of insolvent debtors, which is one of the subjects coming within federal control under sub-section 21, under the head of "Bankruptcy and Insolvency," would also, as pointed out in Cushing vs. Dupuy, L. R. 5 App. Cas. 409, involve matters relative to procedure in civil matters, which by sub-section 14 of section 92 belong exclusively to the province; yet legislation on the part of the Dominion regulating the procedure is a matter exclusively within the jurisdiction of the parliament. Similarly, although by sub-section 15 of section 91 "banking" is exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Dominion, yet as shown by the Bank of Toronto vs. Lambe, L. R. 12 App. Cas. 575, the provinces, under the power to regulate taxation, have the right to impose direct taxes on banking institutions.

It becomes then necessary to look to the general scope of the statute in question. If the real scope and intention of a statute passed by the legislature under section 92 is to deal with some or one of the subjects of section 91, then, clearly, the enactment is void. But, if the general scope and intention of the statute is only to regulate matters coming within section 92, then the legislation will be valid; although, as subsidiary to the general object and intention, matters may have incidentally to be dealt with which come within the express language of section 91.

Sections 91 and 92 must, as remarked by the Privy Council in Citizens Ins. Co. vs. Parsons, L. R. 7 App. Cas. 96, be read together, and the language of one interpreted and, where necessary, modified by that of the other, so as to reconcile the respective powers they contain and give effect to all of them.

Applying these principles to the present case it seems abundantly clear that the general scope and intention of the "Game Protection Act, 1895," is, as its name implies, the preservation of the game of the province. So far, then, the general object of the act is one relating to property and civil rights, and is "essentially local," as applying only to the game of the province. It is, as remarked by Killam, J., in R. vs. Robertson, 3 Manitoba, p. 620, "to secure the increase, or to prevent at any rate so far as possible the decrease of the supply of game within the province, in order that the people of the province may enjoy the sport of pursuing and killing the birds or animals mentioned in the act, or may have at hand a ready supply of them for food or for profit," and, as he continues to say, "All of the enactments against having them in possession or exporting them are evidently so many accessories to the prohibition upon the killing at certain seasons, and are all plainly directed to the purpose mentioned."

I cannot see anything in the exercise of the power undoubtedly possessed by the legislature to preserve the game of the province which is in any way overborne by the exclusive right of the Dominion to regulate trade and commerce, so as to prevent the legislature prohibiting export as incidental to and as carrying out the general scheme of game protection in the province.

The contention, therefore, upon which the appellant has chosen to rest this case, that of the unconstitutionality of section 7, clearly fails, and the appeal must be dismissed. As, however, this is a test case and the appellant could, had he chosen not to waive them, have defeated the prosecution upon some of the preliminary points referred to in the commencement of my judgment, I think there should be no costs. The "Game Protection Act" very usefully empowers the government to make rules and regulations for carrying out the true intent and meaning of the act, and for protection of game in the province. I entertain no doubt that rules and regulations can be so drawn as to facilitate the enforcement of the provisions of the act relative to the export of game, or parts thereof, which provisions, I am fully satisfied, are perfectly constitutional and valid.

"We always fry ours in Cottolene."

Like most other people, our folks formerly used lard for all such purposes. When it disagreed with any of the family (which it often did) we said it was "too rich." We finally tried and not one of us has had an attack of "richness" since. We further found that, unlike lard, Cottolene had no unpleasant odor when cooking, and lastly Mother's favorite and conservative cooking authority came out and gave it a big recommendation which clinched the matter. So that's why we always fry ours in Cottolene.

CLEWS' FINANCIAL REVIEW

The Agricultural Prospects in the United States—Hope of a Good Harvest.

Confidence in the Permanence of the Revival of Trade—Bi-Metallism.

New York, June 1.—The market appears to have discounted the worst probabilities respecting the wheat crop and now begins to consider the other side of the case. So far, the facts are that the crop is unusually backward, owing first to drouth in the early stages of its growth and then to check from sudden exposure to severe cold. It is not impossible that this may, in any case, prove a permanent injury; but at the same time the extent of the injury must greatly depend upon the future course of the weather. It is not at all impossible, nor even unlikely, that with plenty of moisture the crop may yet turn out a fair average one. The plant has not yet absorbed the soil elements of nutrition, and should the atmospheric elements of growth prove propitious the recovery of the plant may surpass what is now anticipated. Moreover, the complaints are confined almost exclusively to the wheat crop. The corn crop is vastly more important, its bulk being fourfold, and its value more than double that of wheat. This year, owing to the high price of corn and the low price of wheat, the acreage of Indian corn is likely to be unusually large, and at present there are no conditions unfavorable to the prospects of the crop. Taking the agricultural prospects as they exist today, there is nothing in them really incompatible with the hope of a good harvest. Very much, however, must depend upon the course of the weather for the next few weeks. There is no certainty in either direction, and the present situation therefore calls for reservation of judgment as to the harvest factor in investments.

Apart from these crop considerations, the underlying conditions and tone of the market remain unchanged. There is no abatement of confidence in the permanence of the revival of general trade which set in with the spring business. The best evidence of the recovery in the manufacturing industries is the continuous advance in wages, mostly voluntarily granted by employers. In most cases the new tariff duties seem to impose no obstacle to production; in some, manufacturers find a positive advantage. The problem now, indeed, seems to be less how to compete with foreigners in the home market than how to outdo them in the foreign markets, in which the chances for Americans are becoming more hopeful and are attracting increased attention. Among those in close contact with our industries, the conviction appears to be gaining ground that we have entered upon a period of unusual growth and prosperity in manufacturing enterprise generally, and that, in some of the leading staples, we are entering the lists for an active competition in the world's markets.

The improved status of our investments in Europe shows signs of further progress. The education of investors seems to be passing from the narrow and pretentious critics of the press to the better informed and more candid bankers and financiers whose judgments really direct the course of European investment. It is a telling comment upon the value of editorial opinion in London that while economists and statists have been persistently decrying our corporate investments, bankers have, within the last three months, placed some $130,000,000 of our bonds and stocks in the London and the Continental markets. This week, an issue of $5,000,000 of railroad bonds drew out $10,000,000 of offers from London before the securities were openly offered; and besides that $2,000,000 of obligations of an electrical corporation were negotiated in the same market.

Europe seems to no longer attach any serious importance to the position of the silver question in this country. Observers there seem to have reached the conclusion that our agitation about free coinage is but an ephemeral phase of popular ignorance, destined to disappear under the influence of the conservative common sense of the people at large; and their judgment is a safe one. In the south and the west, a very marked reaction against national free coinage has set in under the diffusion of information through the various sound money agencies, and the best judges of sentiment and politics in those sections agree that the silver kings can make no further progress in their efforts to create a government market for their product. There is a quasi-conservative element among us who have clung to the hope that a settlement might be reached through establishing international bimetallism; but the hopes of that class are fading before the growing evidences of the improbability of bringing about such an agreement; if not also from growing misgivings whether such an arrangement should prove equal to providing for a present annual world-product of $2,000,000,000 of the metal, and possibly of its yearly increase in addition. England's disposition in the matter has been shown this week by the chancellor of the exchequer's emphatic public declaration that, under no conditions whatever, would the British government sanction any departure from the historic gold standard policy of the nation. From the opposite political party came authoritative warnings to Mr. Balfour and Lord Salisbury that the Conservatives would oppose any concessions towards bimetallism. This materially lessens the hope of England supporting a double standard policy; and, as England goes, so Germany will follow, if not even France also. Clearly, therefore, conference or no conference, international bimetallism is now surrounded with greater doubt than ever as a settlement of this question. A recognition of that fact will tend to greatly clarify the issue in this country, which must later confine the choice of our people between the gold standard on the one side, and the single silver standard with free coinage on the other side. In reality, this should settle the question; though the fanatical stubbornness of the silverites may help to keep the issue in politics for some time longer. In the meantime, it is certain that no legislation favorable to silver could be enacted so long as the presidency is in its present incumbency.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed an exhibit at the World's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the World's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

PROFESSOR NASH DROWNED

A. M. Nash, of the Calcutta University, Falls Overboard and is Drowned.

Was on a Holiday Trip to the Old Country—His Wife Prostrated by Grief.

A. M. Nash, professor of mathmetics at the English government university at Calcutta, India, was drowned from the steamship City of Topeka last Monday afternoon in Wright's sound, near Point Comax, before the eyes of his wife, who was at the rail with him when he went overboard. The case takes on the shroud of mystery, as it is claimed by some on the steamer that a short time prior to the fatal plunge Nash repulsed his wife's attempts to place her arms around him, but on the other hand the most intimate friend of Mrs. Nash says that the bereaved woman feels that the death was accidental. Whether it was suicide or accident, it is true that Prof. Nash had everything to live for and little to cause a suicidal mania. He had been engaged in educational work for years, and it is said that his name is affixed to several important works on mathematics. While at Calcutta he did a great deal of original work, and it was his intention to put this matter in proper form during the coming year while he and his wife were visiting at his mother's home in Reading, England.

Prof. Nash was a very short and rather stout man, aged 43 years, English to the backbone and educated at Oxford.

Some time ago the English government gave him leave of absence, and it was intended to make an extended pleasure tour of the country before arriving at the home of his childhood, Reading, England, where he and his wife were to pass a year. They left Calcutta some time ago, and visited the Orient, after which they went to San Francisco and then north to Tacoma, where they took the steamer City of Topeka two weeks ago for Alaska, having purchased round trip tickets.

Mr Nash spent a good deal of his time walking the deck. Shortly before his death he was joined in his walk by his wife. They walked up and down the deck for a short time and then stopped about mid-ships on the port side and both leaned over the railing, engaged in earnest conversation.

Suddenly, without warning of any kind, Prof. Nash tipped forward and as his feet came up in the air he gave a sort of kick and slid downward toward the glistening water. Mrs. Nash made frantic efforts to hold her husband's legs as he went over the railing, but she was unsuccessful and saw the body disappear in the depths below. In the paroxysm of grief that followed this awful sight the poor woman shrieked for help and fell on her knees in supplication. In the meantime Nick Paulson, a deckhand who had witnessed the scene, ran forward and gave the alarm of "man overboard."

Capt. Wallace had the steamer brought around as quickly as possible and a boat was lowered. It was no use, however, for not a trace of the lost man could be found. It is probable that Carpentar Linn was the last to see the unfortunate man alive, for he was at the stern of the boat on the same deck from which the drowning took place, and as he heard the cries of the bereaved woman and the alarmed deckhand, looked up and saw Prof. Nash floating on the waves in the wake of the steamer. [illegible] however, he was lost to sight in a watery grave.

Capt. Wallace was of course compelled to continue the voyage, and arrived in port yesterday morning at 11 o'clock.

NAMING JAPANESE CHILDREN.

There Are Three Methods, Two of Them Religious.

The Shinto belief is the oldest of the Japanese religions, antedating perhaps the Christian religion, and having been obscured by Buddhism for quite a number of centuries, has been revived. The method of naming children, it seems, is quite a curious one, there being three ways in use by the followers of Shinto, the Way of the Gods.

One, the most obvious and the least devout, is for the father to name the child himself. The next in an ascending scale of piety is for the father to select several suitable names, and then submit the choice among them to the god. The way the god shows his choice is as follows: The father brings the child to the temple, and with him slips of paper inscribed with possible names. Three or five is the usual number. The priest rolls them up separately, puts them into a bowl, and after due incarnation angles for them with a gohei upon a wand. (The gohei is the long zigzag of paper which is so important in ceremonies of a religious nature.)

Whichever the gohei fishes out first is the god-given name the child is to bear, a convenient custom when the father is in doubt between the far Eastern equivalents of Tom, Dick or Harry. This is a ceremony which takes place when the infant is a week old. It is not to be confounded with the miya mairi, which takes place a month after birth, and is not our christening at all, but akin to the Hebraic presentation at the temple. For at the miya mairi the child, named some weeks before, is presented to its guardian god and formally put under his protection.

This third method of getting a name for a child is through one of the possessions or trances which are so common in the religious ceremonies of these people. The priest goes into his trance and his assistant asks him, or rather the god through him, what is the proper name, and the god makes reply.

This method of christening one's child is reputed the most holy of the three, and is duly practiced by the ultra devout. Of the population of Japan about 20 per cent are thus named by the gohei or the god—about 10 per cent by each.—Occult Japan.

—Health and happiness are relative conditions; at any rate, there can be little happiness without health. To give the body its full measure of strength and energy, the blood should be kept pure and vigorous, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

EARNINGS OF LAWYERS.

How much do successful barristers make in a year? Some particulars given in the number of London Home for April throw some light on the question. It is commonly said that Sir Charles Russell never made less than £20,000 or £25,000 per annum for many years preceding his promotion. Large as his income was, there were half a dozen men at the bar running it very close.

But Sir Richard Webster and Sir Edward Clarke are making fully £20,000 a year, and men like Mr. R. B. Finlay, Sir Henry James, Mr. A. T. Murphy, Mr. Lawson Walton, Mr. Fielding Dickens, Mr. W. Willis, Mr. Cozens Hardy, Mr. Graham Hastings and others are credited with almost equally large earnings. But most Q. C.'s are, of course, very much less fortunate.

There are large and small incomes also among members of the junior bar. Men like Mr. English Harrison and Mr. R. M. Bray are, the writer of the article says, kept actively engaged with good and remunerative work, bringing in from £1,000 to £5,000 a year, but probably half of the men at the junior bar are not making £150 a year, while many men of the highest attainments are not making, and have not been for years past, £50 a year.—Westminster Budget.

The greatest medical authorities and scientists in the world recommend Adams' Tutti Frutti for Indigestion. Among them Dr. Cyrus Edson, Health Commissioner, and R. Ogden Doremus, M.D., LL.D.

RACES TO-MORROW.

All the events which are to take place at Stanley Park to-morrow afternoon have been well filled with the exception of the open steeplechase. There are 25 entries for the Indian pony race, and it has consequently been decided to divide the entries and have two races for the ponies. A good car service has been promised, and no doubt there will be a large attendance.

MANCHESTER CUP.

Manchester, June 7.—Florizelli III, owned by the Prince of Wales, won the Manchester cup.

Manchester was invaded by Americans to-day anxious to see Mr. Michael F. Dwyer's Banquet race for the Manchester cup. The Prince of Wales' Florizelli III won. Previous to the race Florizelli III was a decided favorite at 7 to 2, but many Americans backed Banquet from 20 to 1 down to 8 to 1. The result of the race was as follows: Florizelli III, first; Green Lane, second; the Docker, third.

Banquet II was clearly outclassed. He got a fair start, but Simms, the colored jockey who rode the American horse, knew from the moment he got away that his mount was beaten.

THE WHEEL.

PROGRAMMES ARE READY.

Programmes and entry blanks for the race meet to be held on June 29 have been mailed to all the provincial and Puget Sound clubs, as well as to Spokane, Walla Walla, Portland, Colfax, Bellingham Bay and Salem. All the crack riders of the province will be in attendance, and some very fast time is expected. Vancouver will hold their meet on July 2, for which they are offering some valuable prizes, and the racing men will thus have three meets to attend—riding here on June 29, going over to Vancouver on July 2 and back to the Sound for the races on July 4. The programme for the opening meet has been arranged as follows, and entries must be received by the secretary, Frank E. Alley, not later than June 25:

CLASS A.

One mile novice	One prize.
Quarter mile open	Two prizes.
One-half mile	Two prizes.
(Open to Provincial riders.)
One Mile, three minute class,	Two prizes.
Three mile handicap	Three prizes.
One mile open	Two prizes.
Five mile team race	$75 trophy.

CLASS B.

One-half mile open	Two prizes.
One mile open	Two prizes.
Three mile open	Three prizes.

BASEBALL.

TO-MORROW'S MATCH.

The Nanaimo baseball team will arrive on the noon train to-morrow with a crowd of supporters, who hope to cheer their favorites to victory. From all reports there is fair ground for saying that the Island teams will lead their Mainland contestants in the league race. Westminster is an unknown quantity, but Vancouver revealed their playing qualities when, with the aid of Simmonds, the Seattle pitcher, they failed in their attempt to win from Nanaimo. The Nanaimo team is likely to show up stronger than Seattle, as the latter were by no means strong at the bat. The Nanaimos have also the advantage of much practice at team work. Their infield is said to be a stone wall. Clark, the visitors' twirler, is far more effective this season than last, and his out-drop may puzzle our boys. All indications point to a grand struggle, and the match will certainly be fought to a finish. Nanaimo has already one game to its credit in the pennant race, and if the Diamond City succeed in winning to-morrow the visitors will have a cinch on championship honors. The teams in batting order follow:

Victoria Amity.		Nanaimo.
Gowen, Gus	C.F.	Tarrant	2B.
Duck	L. F.	Gonge	R.F.
Gowen, Geo.	R.F.	Voegle	C.
Jackson	S.S.	McDonald	1B.
Partridge	1B.	Hayes	C.F.
Scott	3B.	Milligan	L.F.
Franklin	C.	Conley	S.S.
Widdowson	2B.	Cheatwood	3B.
Lenfesty	P.	Clark	P.

SOUND MATCHES.

When the managing committee of the Amities meet they will have three propositions to consider for matches over the Sound. Seattle wants the return match to be played in that city on the 22nd instant, and Port Townsend wants the Victoria boys to go there for July 4th. It is probable that both offers will be accepted. Tacoma is also looking for a game, so that with the provincial league games there will be lots of baseball this season.

A JUNIOR GAME.

The Maple Leaf and Fernwood baseball clubs will play their second game of the season at Beacon Hill to-morrow at 2 p.m. sharp. Both teams have been practicing hard and a good game is expected. The teams are as follows:

Maple Leafs.		Fernwoods.
F. Proctor	catcher.	W. Winsby.
J. Barnswell	pitcher.	J. Gill.
D. McLeod	1 base	E. Dier.
H. Zeigler	2 base	A. Huxtable.
F. McConnell	3 base	H. Northcott.
G. Morris	short stop	W. Kinsman.
W. Hoarke	left field	S. Patton.
C. Esnouf	centre field	A. Catmsuss.
W. Dodds	r. f.	W. Wrigiesworth.

YACHTING.

ROYAL YACHT CLUB REGATTA.

Sheerness, June 7.—In a fresh northeaster the Niagara and two other yachts of the same class started at 12:30 p.m. to-day in the race for a prize of £20 in the regatta of the Royal London Yacht club. The course was from the Nore lightship around the east buoy, Naze and Ouse lightship and returning to the Nore lightship. Twice around completed the course. At 1:15 the Niagara was leading with the Luna second. The Britannia and Ailso were to have started over the same course in a race for a prize offered for yachts of their class, but the Ailsa's mainsail split at the gaff and she was compelled to retire.

LACROSSE.

THE TRIANGLE TEAM.

The Triangle Club leave to-night for Vancouver to play in that city to-morrow. The names of the team that will play to-morrow will not be known until this evening. By the refusal to play this season of Messrs. Eckhardt, Macnaughton and Morton the club is left with only nine of its old playing members, and these are W. Cullin, A. E. Belfry, C. Cullin, George Coldwell, T. R. Cusack, D. M. Paterson, W. E. Ditchburn, George Tite and Frank Cullin. To make up the three vacancies in the team the Triangles have asked the Capitals for three of their players, Messrs. W. Snider, W. Smith and Frank Smith, the two former for the defence and the latter for the home. These three are all first class players and in every way qualified to hold positions on a senior team. Both Vancouver and Westminster have drawn from the junior ranks this season to make up teams, and Victoria with the three juniors spoken of on their team for to-morrow would be able to make a good showing and probably win the first game for the Triangles. It is to be hoped, in the interest of true sport and the welfare of the national game, that the Capitals will see their way clear to let these men go for this game and then the people may be sure of seeing some first class lacrosse this season. Providing these three men will not be released by the Capitals, the Triangles will have to go up with a very weak team.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Entries for the ten mile handicap bicycle race for the Harris cup must be in the hands of Mr. Harris by Thursday next. The first heat will be contested on the 22nd.

Mr. Cecil Ward's eleven defeated the Royal Arthur eleven by 241 to 59 in the cricket match on the canteen grounds yesterday.

It is probable that a special trap shooting match will be arranged between C. W. Minor and F. S. Maclure for the chronometer offered by J. A. Virtue, they having tied in the three matches on May 23.

Manager Russell of the Seattle team has offered the Amities a game on the 22nd instant in Seattle. The matter will be considered.

The Scotch team for to-morrow evening's tug-of-war is as follows: A. McDonald (anchor), John Manders, Wm. A. Anderson, James Woods, James McDonald, William G. Murray, A. McLennan, William R. Hill, Captain, Robt. McGregor.

THE REVOLT OF ISLAM.

Bedouins Threatening the Europeans—Hospitals Destroyed.

Djeddah, June 7.—The situation here is considered a very grave one for Europeans who have not been able to take refuge on board the foreign vessels in the harbor. There are very few Turkish troops in the garrison and the town people generally are pleased at the Bedouin attack on the foreign consuls and at their wrecking of the cholera hospital. This being pilgrimage time, the religious feeling among the masses runs very high and unless something is immediately done by one of the powers, or by Great Britain, Russia and France, whose consular representatives were murderously assaulted, to enforce respect for Europe, the lives of the latter will not be safe and a revolt of the Bedouins shortly is very probable.

LAW INTELLIGENCE

County Court Cases—The Shelby Released on Bonds.

In the county court to-day before Mr. Justice Walkem the trial of Malcolm v. Beaven and Yates took place and judgment was reserved. The plaintiff is assignee for the benefit of creditors of John Graham Brown, who was a creditor of Green, Worlock & Company, The assignees, Messrs. Beaven and Yates, declared a dividend of five per centum and the plaintiff presented the assignees for inspection the original assignment to him from Brown; the assignees refused to pay, holding that vouchers had not been furnished such as the nature of the case admitted of and they claimed to be entitled to either the original assignment or a notorial certified copy thereof. This the plaintiff refused to furnish except at the cost of the assignees. Mr. Fell, for the plaintiff, contended that all his client was compelled to do was to satisfy the defendants of his identity and the validity of the claim. Mr. Irving, for the defendant, contended that plaintiff had not established his right to be placed on the list of creditors. Judgment was reserved.

Phillips v. Lawrence—County court case tried before Mr. Justice Walkem. Action for illegal distress, which was denied, and defendant counterclaimed for waste and balance due for rent. The plaintiff, the only witness called, proved that his house was situated on the street adjoining the defendant's property, and over which the action arose and that he, the plaintiff, was a trespasser on defendant's lots, 19 and 20, and on this account claimed damages for illegal distress. At the judge's suggestion a settlement was made whereby the parties abandoned their respective claims and the defendant agreed to allow the plaintiff to occupy the premises till December next, to enable plaintiff to reap his crops. J. A. Aikman for defendant, and S. Perry Mills for plaintiff.

County court opened at 9:30 this morning with Wong Chee vs. Ban Sun Low Co. An action for $300 lent in 1889 to the manager of a business, which was afterwards bought by the defendants, and is now carried on by them. Plaintiff never demanded money from defendants until this year. A non-suit was ordered with costs. Lindley Crease for plaintiff and J. A. Aikman for defendants.

An order was made this morning by Chief Justice Davie, releasing the schooner Shelby upon furnishing security in the sum of $2,000, satisfactory to the registrar; the moneys realized from the sale of skins to be deposited in the Bank of British Columbia to the credit of C. E. Pooley and H. D. Helmcken, Simpkins (Drake, Jackson & Helmcken) for the application and A. P. Luxton contra.

A writ has been issued by the Canadian Order of Odd Fellows and James Tagg, John Friend and A. G. Robertson, trustees of Loyal Dauntless lodge No. 177, against D. L. Cummings for an injunction to restrain the defendant from dealing with moneys in his custody in relation to the lodge of which he was treasurer. The writ was issued on the 1st of June, and upon the same day on the affidavit of James Tagg, Mr. Helmcken, Q. C., on behalf of the plaintiffs, made an application for an interim injunction, which was granted by Mr. Justice Drake until to-day or until further notice, with liberty to the defendants to apply to dissolve the same by giving 24 hours' notice. The motion is being heard. Mr. Helmcken for the plaintiffs.
